Reid vs. Scott, Grayston vs. McLaren, Desmond vs. Sarason Bouts, Like Main Event, All Terminate in Second Stanza—Youngsters Good

Viking, July 6th. There was plenty of action at the boxing show held in the Elks' hall last Thursday evening, sponsored by the Elks' hall company, and promoted by C. A. Dupre.

The dope in the main bout was completely upset, the majority of fans contending that Lefty Lukens, of Irma, had a good chance to defeat Johnnie Walsh, amateur heavyweight champion of Alberta in 1932. Walsh, making his pro debut in this bout, easily took the measure of the Irma farmer in the second round of a scheduled ten round go. Lukens was the aggressor in the first round, making the champ look very slow, but it was different in the second. The boy from Duvernay uncorked a

MORTIMER W.A. NEWS

A meeting of the Mortimer W. A. was held at the home of Mrs. J. Routledge. Mrs. W. Comley, president, was in the chair. The meeting opened with a prayer and hymn. Mrs. E. Routledge was chosen secretary for the meeting.

A discussion took place re the garden tea to be held at the home of Mrs. J. R. Routledge. It was decided that Tuesday, July 18th, be the day, and that all proceeds from the affair be given to the building fund of the Irma Anglican Church.

A small sale of needlework will be held in aid of Mortimer W. A.

Horseshoe games for menfolk and a bran tub for children were arranged for. It was also decided that price of tea be set at 20c for adults, and 10c for children.

It was decided to hold the next meeting at the home of Mrs. Burrow, July 13th.

A chapter from book was read and the meeting brought to a close with prayer. A dainty luncheon was served by the hostess.

Mike "Kap" Kaplansky, prominent Edmonton sportsman, acted as referee in his usual efficient manner.

While the attendance was not as large as on several previous occasions, visitors were present from practically all neighboring towns.

Wedding Bells

MILLS—SMALLWOOD
A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Smallwood, Irma, when their daughter, Maude Aletha, became the bride of Ernest Wesley Mills, son of Mrs. G. D. Mills and the late Mr. Mills, of Edmonton.

The bride, who was unattended, was very charming in sapphire blue crepe. The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. R. Geeson, of Irma.

After the ceremony and wedding supper, which followed the, the bride and groom left for Banff and thence to Edmonton, where they will make their home, followed by the best wishes of friends and relatives who were present at the ceremony.

PETERSON—NICHOLS

Melvin Peterson, second son of Mr. Howard Peterson, and Mary Nichols, of Inlay, were married at Wainwright, June 30th, at the United Church Manse, by an old friend and former pastor of the family, Rev. T. Edgar Armstrong. They were accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Holt who acted as witnesses.

Mr. and Mrs. Peterson are staying at the home of the groom's father until they can get buildings on their farm.

It is interesting to note that Miss Nichols taught school in the Ross district for a number of years until last season, when she taught at Edgerton.

Honor Recent Bride at Home of Mrs. Schonnert

A very pleasant afternoon was spent at the home of Mrs. S. V. Schonnert, Irma, when about thirty-five ladies gathered in honor of Miss Maud Smallwood, R.N., only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Smallwood, well-known residents of the Irma district, whose marriage to Mr. Ernest Mills, of Edmonton, took place recently.

During the afternoon, Mrs. Bruce Hadow gave two delightful piano solos, and Mrs. Schonnert, in her usual pleasing manner, gave a reading entitled, "Grandmother." Following this, each lady present was asked to make a wish and draw the answer from a "Well of Fortune," the guest of honor being the last to draw, found a lovely surprise awaiting her, being presented with the miniature well filled to overflowing with lovely and useful gifts, which she accepted and thanked most feelingly her many kind friends.

The afternoon was brought to a close with a delightful luncheon. Mrs. J. Fletcher, Mrs. W. Masson and Mrs. R. Larson assisted Mrs. Schonnert.

Speaker Declares Present Economic System Useless

William Irvine, M.P., Declares World Has Only Eleven Billions of Money to Pay 400 Billions of Indebtedness

By E. RANDS.
Viking, July 6th. William Irvine, M.P., addressed a good sized crowd in the Elks' hall on Thursday, June 29th, at 2:00 p.m. The speaker, who has spent many years in a study of the economic systems of the day, gave a very clear picture of the weaknesses of the present capitalistic order, and then dealt with two of the main planks in the platform of the C.C.F.

To Mr. Irvine, and to many others, the reason for the present depression are very apparent and the situation of the present is the most natural thing in the world after the course we have followed for 150 years. It has been a debt-creating system, said the speaker, and until it is changed, debts will have to go on piling up indefinitely.

One of the greatest condemnations the present order has to face is a situation in which thousands of the

Summer Holidays

Children—children, everywhere, Near the streets, a-playing; Happy voices cheering us— They are holidaying.

How we love these children dear, Flowers—our earthly treasure— Giving to our hearts a glimpse Of the heavenly measure; Every sunrise calling forth, From their lips unfolding, Visions sweet that draw and lead, For our dull beholding.

Touches of divinely love Rarest inspiration— With their lifting voices still Tuned to God's creation.

Let them play—enjoy the day; May our wise instructions Be as pure as safe a lure As their own deductions.

For the glow that still shines o'er them From the heavenly border Crafty artifice rebukes Through their genuine ardor.

Irma, Alta. NANCY O. PARKE.

An Apology and a Promise

However, we had no time to write an advertisement to the public this week, but promise you the usual worth while savings if you will but come and see. Family Reunion

A pleasant family reunion was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Enger when 27 members of both families gathered for a happy time together, including little Miss Joy Enger's great grandmother. Not many little girls have the honor of having two grandmothers and two great grandmothers able to visit her.

A want ad. in this paper does big work at small cost. Now is the time to sell, trade, or exchange for something else.

Dealing with the debt situation, Mr. Irvine went on to show that they could never be paid and that it was perfectly just and, in fact, the only thing to do, to cancel them as Russia did in past years. We condemned Russia then, but we have come to that place ourselves. There is only 11 billions of gold in the world and there are 400 billions of debts. There are only two ways of paying debts—by money or by goods. There is not enough money in existence, and we have put up tariff barriers and have lost our markets. "The debts can't be paid because they CAN'T be paid," said the speaker, with characteristic earnestness. Hence the need for a re-organization of our monetary basis.

The C.C.F. stands for co-operation, for a planned economy, for a system where men will not be in competition, fighting each other as we have in capitalism, but will work for the good of the brotherhood of man, in the opinion of the speaker.

In dealing with the C.C.F. plank of socialization, Mr. Irvine said that we don't want to destroy anybody's initiative, and will not. We want to give everyone a chance to work and have certain goods for use. To own these goods will not hurt anyone. But to let such goods as railways be in the hands of private men who use them for their own profit, is ridiculous. They are the industries that we want to socialize, not your homes or your farms or stores. The road will be a long one and will need courageous men and women to blaze the trails that the youth who follow will have a greater and more noble heritage than the one we possess. The world should be for the men and women who live in it.

World's Future At Stake

The World Economic Conference now meeting in London constitutes what is probably the greatest assemblage of nations ever convened in the history of the world. In his opening address, Premier Ramsay MacDonald declared: "There is greater authority gathered in this hall than has perhaps ever been brought under one roof in the world's history."

Sixty-seven nations are represented in this momentous conference, or a larger number of separate national units than most people had knowledge existed. But it is not alone the size of the gathering that makes it outstanding in importance among all great world economic conferences; rather it is the fact that, for the first time since the Great War, it is composed of Government plenipotentiaries with the power to act.

As one well known economic authority points out, there have been many economic conferences in the past ten years, but they were composed of experts who were called upon merely to advise, but without authority to commit their Governments. The present conference is quite different; it is made up of representatives of the Governments of all nations, clothed with authority to reach definite agreements, thereby committing those Governments to exert their power and authority to secure ratification of such agreements by their various legislative bodies. There is, therefore, hope that definite action will result.

Whether such action does result depends, says the economic authority already quoted, upon the answer to a fundamental question. Will the Governments really turn their backs on the ideal of national self-sufficiency, and try to rebuild prosperity on a basis of interdependence and mutual benefit in international trade, even though that may involve a modification of their present national policies? If so, then there is no reason why the Conference should not be a great success. But, if not, there is little hope of preventing a drift into even greater depression, the ultimate outcome of which no man can foretell.

This is the crux of the whole matter, and discussing it in his opening address, Premier Ramsay MacDonald further said: "Have we come to deliberate and decide as though our respective nations were isolated units in the world? Then we shall fail and the world which looks upon us today with expectations will have to drain a bitter cup of disappointment. Have we come knowing that the permanent good of each is dependent upon the permanent good of all, and determined to co-operate in coming to agreements which will make a renewal of prosperity possible? Then we shall succeed, and expectations of the world will be justified. We must not fail."

And His Majesty the King in opening the conference sounded the keynote when in a stirring appeal he said: "In the face of a crisis which all realize and acknowledge, I appeal to you all to co-operate for the sake of the ultimate good of the whole world. It cannot be beyond the powers of man so to use the vast resources of the world as to insure the material progress of civilization."

Surely it is inconceivable that the leading statesmen of the world, men clothed with all the responsibilities of government and whose very positions have made them fully cognizant of the underlying and fundamental causes of the world's present economic sickness, will be so nationally selfish, so neglectful of their own and their countries' responsibilities to the world at large, as to take such irreconcilable attitudes that the success of the conference will be wrecked.

President Roosevelt in his stirring pre-conference appeal to the sovereign heads of all nations stressed the terrible responsibility that would rest on any nation, or group of nations, which stood out against the rest of the world in their insistence upon narrow, nationalistic and purely selfish policies. He realized, as Premier Ramsay MacDonald realizes, and as all sane and sensible people must realize, that a purely national economic policy in this modern world is one which by impoverishing other nations, impoverishes those who pursue it. No man can permanently enrich himself at the expense of others. Mutual enrichment is a condition of individual enrichment.

To quote Premier Ramsay MacDonald once again: "Nationalism in the sphere of politics may be essential to human freedom. Self-sufficient nationalism in economics is the death knell of advancing prosperity. The nearer we can make the world an economic unit the better will it be for each nation. In any event, international co-operation is our best way to national recovery, and the nation which looks after itself in an international frame of mind will not only lead the world in enlightenment but in well-being."

Narrow nationalism must go. If it does not, the very nations which persist in it will themselves go, go down in the crash and debacle of a destroyed civilization. The present World Economic Conference is a turning point in the life of the present generation. The hope and prayer of the teeming masses of the world's population is that their leaders will rise to the occasion, and courageously and energetically take the right road.

New Canadians

Education Necessary in Order That They Should Know Something About Canada

"It is too bad the government doesn't look into this matter. When you make application for naturalization papers, they should give you some literature so that you would know something about Canada."

Judge F. A. G. Ouseley, hearing applications for naturalization in district court, made this observation. He regretted that something was not being done to help new Canadians secure their citizenship papers.

Brown Root Rot

Disease Affects Clover in Alberta and Saskatchewan Areas

Brown root rot has been observed on sweet clover, alfalfa and common clover growing in the southern and central parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan, as far north as Prince Albert in the latter province, and Athabasca and Beaverlodge in Alberta. The fungus is native and apparently abundant in the cultivated black soils of the prairie area mentioned. The disease has not been reported as occurring elsewhere in Canada, or in foreign countries. Freight Rate On Butter

Move Made By Western Provinces For Better Consideration

Joint action on the part of the Provincial dairy associations of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta will likely be taken shortly to obtain a reduction in the freight rate on butter shipments from the prairie to Vancouver and Eastern Canada.

The move follows upon the rejection by the board of railway commissioners of an application for a reduction in the freight rate on butter shipments from the prairies to Vancouver and to eastern Canada. Freight rates on butter are the same now as they were when the product was selling for 40 cents per pound.

Saskatchewan dairy representatives have already communicated with officials of the two sister provinces with a view to holding a meeting and planning a joint appeal to the board of railway commissioners for a rehearing of the case.

FAT MAN LOSES 63 lbs.

Kruschen and Walking

Overweight men who want to lose a few pounds can have the benefit of this man's experience. He gives them to us for publication:—

"In a little over twelve months I have reduced my weight from 237 lbs. to 174 lbs. by taking a dose of Kruschen Salts every morning for six months, and taking walking exercise every day. This remarkable achievement is all the more interesting when one considers that I did not resort to any form of dieting."—G. L. B.

You can take off fat with Kruschen Salts if you will take one-half teaspoon in hot water every morning before breakfast, modify your diet, and exercise regularly.

While you are losing fat you will be gaining in energy—in endurance—in ambition. The old arm chair won't hold you any more—you'll want to be up and doing—you'll enjoy work and active recreation and you'll sleep like a top. You'll lose fat, and probably live years longer.

Takes Opposite View

French Academy. Thinks Ships Should Be Called "He"

Trespassing on the domain of the Académie Française, the Académie de Marine has ventured to tackle a grammatical problem. It relates to the much-vexed question of the sex of ships, writes the Paris correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph.

In England, where people do not have to worry about the gender of inanimate objects, it is nevertheless firmly established that ships have a right to the feminine pronoun. The French, who are much too logical to indulge in such personifications, take the opposite view on the ground that the words which mean ship ("navire," "vaisseau," "bâtiment") are masculine.

But, while it may be perfectly satisfactory to talk about "le navire," it sounds very odd to speak of "le Normandie" or "le République" when a vessel happened to have a feminine name for a name. The Académie de Marine therefore demands that the present practice should be placed before feminine nouns in order that "outrages against grammar, good sense and euphony" may be avoided.

Dick Turpin's Coat

Money and Jewels Found Recently in Lining of Old Garment

Money and jewelry have been found in the lining of a plum-colored velvet coat which belonged to Dick Turpin, the famous highwayman.

The coat was recently bought by Mr. Rutter, of Cambridge, along with the mask, pistols and spurs which Dick Turpin left at the Three Tuns Inn, Cambridge, on Jan. 12, 1739, when he escaped from the Newgate runners.

He never claimed them before he was hanged at York on April 10 of the same year, and they passed to an excise man, from whose great-grandson at Cardiff Mr. Rutter bought them for £50.

While Mr. Rutter was carrying the coat, a George I. half-crown, dated 1717, fell from the lining. Then the other articles were found, comprising: six silver coins, two copper coins, a gold ring, two silver rings, and a pair of silver-gilt earrings.

Grows Larger in Canada

A new record for Loch Leven trout in Canada was established recently with the taking of one weighing 10 pounds 2 ounces in the Cypress Hills area, Saskatchewan, a weight several times that of the average for the species in Scotland, its original home.

Statistics and experience of the best Canadian farmers show that crop yields in Canada are, generally speaking very much below the possible maximum.

SAVE THE POKER HANDS

Would Only Benefit Few

Many People Would Suffer If Prices Unduly Increased

The United States and Europe are trying to combine so as to raise prices all round. If wheat were $10 per bushel and everything else up in proportion, would the world be in any better position than if wheat were $1 per bushel and everything else priced in proportion. If a man should die at seventy years of age and leave a wife fifty years of age with an income of $500 a year how could she get along when increased prices for necessities came upon her?

The widows, and men who have retired because of age, because of sickness, women who have saved enough to live modestly, the great array of children who are unfit for work, etc. The rise in price of lumber might help the woodman, the increase in the price of steel might help the makers of steel and their puddlers, but in going all around the social course it would crush perhaps as many as it would lift up. This is especially true of country villages and towns, where there are more people living on small incomes in proportion to population than in larger places. If we talk of a national fund to help these people with small incomes, we complete the circle and arrive at the very place from which we started. We might just as well leave things as they are and let old supply and demand do the regulating of prices.—Port Rowan News.

Wild Cattle In England

Unique Herd Maintained On One Of Oldest Estates

It may surprise many people to know that there are wild cattle in England, yet there is an authentic herd, not running wild, but living on the estate of one of England's oldest peers, the Earl of Tankerville in Northumberland.

For centuries these animals have had their habitat on the Earl's wooded demesne of 700 acres, which is so totally enclosed by a stone wall that the breed has remained pure for upwards of five hundred years. There are just 44 of them, but as it costs quite a sum to feed and care for them without producing any return the Earl has been obliged to ask for some assistance in their maintenance. The Zoological Society has come forward and the preservation of this unique herd is assured.

These cattle are pure white with red muzzles, and black tips to their upward tilted horns. They are smaller than ordinary cows, extremely shy despite the fact that nobody ever seeks to touch them, and are dangerous to strangers.

It is said they are descendants of the aurochs, primitive wild oxen, which were hunted in England by Roman soldiers when the Caesars had swept away.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

French Eat Less Bread

Bread-eating capacity of the French is steadily declining, says Edmond Chaix, president of the Touring Club of France. Once the world's champion bread-eaters with a daily per capita consumption of two pounds, the modern Frenchman consumes but one pound ten ounces. Mr. Chaix blames the decline on the war, during which, he says, his countrymen became tired of poor quality bread.

A man never gives much thought to the ups and downs of life until he strikes the downs.

Wager Was Easily Won

New York Times Outwitted By Young Club Man

In the course of an argument among some of the younger members of the University Club, one of the group made an generalization that writing poetry was easy and that he, although God knows, no poet, could write a poem and get it printed. Moreover, he could get it printed in the New York Times. He had cash that said he could. Money to cover his wager bobbed up at once. Then, with a little effort he wrote a poem—anyway, he wrote eight lines that had some rhyme. The inconvertible Times came next. On that matter, he showed himself a young man of invention. First, he wrote a letter signed X.Y.Z. to the question-and-answer department of the paper's book section, asking if some reader could give the last four lines of the poem which began—and he quoted the first four lines of his poem. The Times ran that. He immediately replied, signing A.B.C., giving X.Y.Z. the last four lines of the poem. The Times, never suspecting, ran that. Then, after some mild grumbling about "instantaneous publication," he drew down his bet.—New Yorker.

Prize For Essay

Fellowship Amounting To $1,000 Offered For Best Essay On Economy Problems

A graduate fellowship, amounting to $1,000, is offered by the Royal Bank of Canada to the students of a Canadian university who writes the best essay on a Canadian economic problem.

The subjects for the papers to be submitted by March 1, 1934, are as follows:

An analysis of Canadian industry. The restoration of international movements of capital as a basis for an increased volume of trade. The discussions and results of the world economic conference.

The future of the export trade in Canadian agriculture. Possible development of power-using industries in eastern Canada.

Have Helped Greatly

Many newspapers have drawn the contrast and commented on the talk about there being a depression while at the same time picture shows are crowded. Picture shows have been one of the valuable things of the depression era, giving the people a chance to direct their minds and thoughts to something other than themselves and their own troubles.

Power Of Imagination

"I'm shot," yelled a burglar when police cornered him in a New York grocery store. Amazed, the policeman, who had not fired a shot, watched him slump to the floor with what looked like blood covering his face. Drawing nearer, they guffawed. The blood was the yolk of an egg which had fallen on his head from a shelf.

May Not Affect Earth

Dr. Charles Abbot, the American astronomer, predicts that the sun will be colder for the next two years. This does not necessarily mean that the earth will have two cold years, as the temperature of the earth is affected by many influences besides solar radiation.

An engineer in Poland has invented a device for an anti-aircraft gun which will hit a machine at 12,000 feet.

Ten Thousand-Foot Tower

French Engineer Proposes To Erect Marvel In Paris

An amazing hollow concrete tower nearly half a mile high, with a spiral motor road leading to a vast superstructure consisting of a garage for 400 cars, a dancing pavilion, a 1,000-seat restaurant, sun-parlor, weather office, and finally a tall aim aerial lighthouse.

This is the breath-taking project of a famous French constructional engineer, M. Eugene Freyssinet.

He proposes this skyscraper marvel, which would completely dwarf the present Eiffel Tower, as an attraction for the world exposition to be held in Paris in 1937.

Visitors would be able to drive their own cars to the clouds for lunch or dinner.

The spiral road would be four miles long and make thirty turns around the tower. It would be the only means of ascent or descent, for no lifts would be installed.

And M. Freyssinet is ready to build the tower, up to a height of 10,000 feet, or nearly two miles, if the world exposition will finance it.

He estimates the cost at about two million dollars.

"Don't you think it will be marvellous on a hot day to jump into a motor car and drive up into the clouds, from where you will have a magnificent panorama of the entire Paris region?" he said.

First Canadian Movie

Filed Under Direction Of Canadian Social Hygiene Council

"The first Canadian motion picture produced in Hollywood and the first Hollywood picture to have a premiere in Canada has been placed in circulation. It is "Damaged Lives," the problem play, filmed under direction of the Canadian Social Hygiene Council. In its first week in Toronto it attracted 25,000 persons.

The picture soon will be shown throughout the British Empire. It has been booked for screening in England under sponsorship of the ministry of health. Its producers regard the film as probably the most extensive piece of public health education ever undertaken by means of talking motion picture.

In a vague way he realized that the triumph was his now, if his hands had strength to seize it. If only he could rise up, he could stave the Browning behind this nest and splatter every square inch of the bandit's covert. As he lay there, nearly helpless, fighting for one last flicker of strength to rise and use the machine gun, he heard Buzzard shouting at him across those seven hundred yards. He could not distinguish the frantic words; he thought Buzzard must be trying to hear him to one more effort. But then he heard Joyce's voice, crying to him. Closer, vibrant with fear, the warning came to him clearly.

"Alan! Alan! He's coming for you! Shoot him! Shoot him!"

The panic and terror of her voice roused Alan. He understood that some peril was looming upon him from those bandits. With a great effort he rose to an elbow, drunk with pain, giddy from loss of blood. A few seconds later, he crept on elbows and knees to the water edge and laved his face and managed to tie a kerchief around his forehead wound.

The bandage stopped the blood from running down his forehead. The cold shock of water drove the nausea away for a little time. Again he heard Joyce crying out to him, but now it was a cry inarticulate, despair-stricken.

He cautiously raised his head, and saw the peril that his two friends had tried to arouse him to meet. The huge red-bearded leader had seen him collapse helplessly, and was coming across to put a bullet through his brain and seize the machine gun. Sinking back unseen, Alan drew his heavy automatic, slipped the trigger safety, and waited. A few moments later, with his enemy within a dozen paces, he suddenly reared up, above the shelter, shooting as he rose.

The seven heavy bullets caught the bandit leader in the breast, knocked him over, killed him instantly.

Crouching down again behind that pile of willow sticks and reeds, Alan turned to the Browning. Methodically he spread the tripod and planted it firmly and clicked it into its mount. Very carefully he fed in a ring of cartridges till it was caught. Reining to one knee then, clasping the spade grip, he cautiously raised his eyes above his shelter.

The breed with the deadly Savage, who had sent three bullets into his body and had drilled Jimmy Montgomery through the heart, was trying to make it back to the flags. Shouting hoarsely, he kept jerking his head around to see what his enemy was doing. Alan swerved the Browning a few degrees, looked down the sights, and his trigger finger lightened. . . . The breed stumbled at that hail of death caught him—stumbled and flung up his arms and pitched face-down in the ankle-deep water.

Releasing for a moment, Alan trained the Browning on that clump of flags where two rifles were still screaming at him; and when he had determined his concentration, the Browning went into play again. Methodically, the gun drumming out its message of death, he swept the clump from end to end, spraying it with bullets, moving down the flags, splatting the bandits' hiding with a raking, slow-weaving fire.

There in the flags a figure leaped up and blindly tried to escape. Alan swung upon it, the figure vanished, there was a thrashing for a moment among the reeds. To the right a single rifle still held out, shooting at Alan. He located the spot and poured a storm of bullets into it. . . . With a shrill yell a small wiry man sprang up, flung his gun spasmodically into the air, doubled up limply and sank down in the flags and much.

Alan stood up then. He thought to swim across and get one of those canoes and go after Joyce. But he had not the strength. The nausea was overpowering him again; his wounds had bled him weak, and the pain of them sickened him. Staggering from the fearful reaction setting in, he sat down on the swan nest, with his world swimming in front of him and all his senses reeling.

It was four days later that those who waited at Fort Endurance learned what had happened northeast in the Land of Many Waters.

One evening at sunset an airplane came swinging around the timbered headland down the Mackenzie. Flying low, just over the water, it veered in toward the steamer landing, touched lightly, skimmed the wavelets, and taxied close in.

As an excited group began gathering at the wharf, the scarlet-and-gold police launch barge in sight around the headland and bore on toward the post. The two craft manifestly had timed themselves to come in together.

Three Indian canoes darted out to tow the plane in to the landing. Father Claverly had come down the terrace and stood a little apart, quietly watching with observant eyes, snaking and willowed back, and coming down; and Elizabeth Spaulding, slipping through the crowd, was trying to edge up near the pier-heads, to be the first to greet Alan Baker.

As the launch drew closer, the crowd saw it carried four men. When it nosed alongside, they recognized Pedneault and Bill Hardcock, mud-died, unshaven; and Alan Baker, a bandage around his head, his left hand wrapped in surgical dressing, his left arm in a splint. The fourth man was some outlandish individual of yellowish complexion and almond eyes, with his right arm carefully splinted and bandaged.

The freightage that the launch carried—a machine gun and clutter of rifles, a half dozen bags of peltry worth a small fortune each, barrels and corded packs, and five stout leather pouches sewn with rawhide in the prospector fashion—this mere sight of that cargo drew a gasp from the crowd and brought them edging up close.

Joyce had come with Buzzard in the plane. As she unslipped her safety belt and stood up, she was remembering her last time here at Endurance, when her father was still alive. It seemed a heartless irony of fate that he had died just when his innocence had been proved. Small comfort to know that his name and memory were cleared of guilt. As she thought of him lying dead at Resolution and of the tragic duty calling her there, she was glad that tonight a steamer was coming past and she would leave this North.

By the time she and Buzzard had skirted ashore, Alan had stepped out upon the plank. In another moment she saw Elizabeth elbow her way through the group pressing around Alan. A gust of emotion—jealousy, scorn, anger—swept across Joyce's pretty face as she watched Elizabeth's greeting. It was agony, it was all artificial, Elizabeth's gladness at his return and her sympathy over his wounds were effusive and contemptible. Joyce could not help thinking of herself swimming across to Alan at the swan nest, and of the compassion that tore at her when she found him there, wounded, bleeding, half unconscious. She felt she had known more real sympathy in those moments than Elizabeth would feel in her whole life. A fierce jealousy, a jealous proprietorship surged through her. Alan had got those wounds fighting for her; she had dreamed them and taken him to her home, and she had nursed him through those long hours of feverish pain.

Haskeil came shoving his way out to the wharf edge. "Hardcock, you and Pedneault are under arrest!"

Bill scarcely glanced up at him. Muddled and haggard from two days of shovel work cutting a channel to refloat the big launch, he and Pedneault continued tossing the pouches and fur bales out upon the plank. "Did you understand, Hardcock?" Haskeil repeated. "You're under arrest."

"Bill looked up. 'I heard you,' he said in weary scorn. 'But haven't time to be arrested just now. Put it off a few minutes, can't you? Here's a hundred and fifty thousand in furs and gold that'd better get under lock and key before part of it walks off. And a prisoner to take up."

Williamson came down to the wharf edge. Joyce saw him hesitate a moment, then hold out his hand to Alan. It was only a momentary pause, but he saw it distinctly, and understood the reason; and it roused a hot anger in her.

She was proud of Alan for the way he reacted. He, too, had noticed the hesitation, and he remarked curtly, refusing his hand:

"Don't bother, Superintendent. You might lose caste. I've heard I'm a criminal."

The division commander was visibly hurt by Alan's words. His eyes were taking in the recovered post, the tired men, Alan's wounds.

"I see you won out against those men. The prisoner, I suppose, is one of them. Where are the others?"

"Over in the Thal-Azash. We did not take the trouble to give them a decent burial."

"Dead?"

"Yes, dead. It was a fair fight, if you care to take my word for it."

Williamson was silent a few moments. Into his eyes came a far-away expression, as though he was thinking of some patrol in the history of the Force and realizing that Baker's victory over these six criminals was one of them and one of the best of them. Finally he requested: "Won't you come up to the cabin. Baker? I'd like to hear your report on this."

"I'll come up," Alan sent an ominous glance at Haskeil. "I've got several things to say to you, superintendent."

Joyce felt some one touching her arm. Turning, she saw it was Father Claverly.

As he shook hands he asked her, "Joyce, if you have time tonight, step over to my study and visit me, won't you?"

"Why yes, Father Claverly, if you wish. I'd better come before ten, the steamer may be here any time after that."

"You're leaving tonight?"

"Yes. There'll be no other for two weeks. Bill told you I'm going back to Ottawa."

Father Claverly nodded, and a little afterwards he left her.

Joyce was deadly serious in her last words to Alan.

"You'll not forget what we talked over—the Inconnu trap?"

"I'll not forget. But he may not walk into it. Joyce. He's shrewd, he's careful."

"You can be shrewder, Alan! You can make him walk into it. Let him think he's got you beaten and hopelessly. Hide what you feel. And don't antagonize Superintendent Williamson."

Studying Rabies Treatment

Old Method Being Investigated By Mexican Department Of Health

An ancient method of treating rabies, said to have been handed down from father to son for many generations, will be studied by the Mexican Department of Health.

Francisco Vega, Sari Indian "medicine man" of San Blas, state of Sinaloa, has been invited to Mexico City to demonstrate the rabies cure for which his family has been famous throughout north-eastern Mexico.

The Sari Indian treatment for the dread disease consists of vegetable preparation, and the medical profession believes it may offer possibilities of eliminating the costly and lengthy treatment of serum injections.

Builds Homes For Pastime

Chinese Merchant Is Finishing Tenth Fraternal Home

Across the picturesque island of Hongkong, eleven and a half miles from the City of Victoria, a gray stone mansion is nearing completion. It is a magnificent structure built on the sloping side of a bluff towering above the placid waters of Repulse Bay.

It will be completed soon and Eu Yan Sang drug merchants money commissioner and tin and rubber magnate, will move in to rest his frayed nerves and aged bones.

For a long time now Eu (pronounced Yu) has been building homes, moving into them, living for a while and then moving back to one of his earlier abodes as his fancy dictates.

Building homes is his hobby, and he can indulge in it to his heart's content, for they are the richest man from Hongkong to Singapore. Some say his fortune runs above $100,000,000 (gold). One of his secretaries in Hongkong said it was impossible to calculate Eu's wealth because of his vast and scattered interests. In Singapore he is reckoned a multi-millionaire in Straits Settlements dollars. The par value of a Straits dollar was about 57 cents American money.

Anyway, he is one of the richest men in the Far East and he has more palaces than a king. His Repulse Bay home across the island of Hongkong is the tenth mansion he has built. His secretary estimated its cost when completed at around $500,000 (Hongkong dollars).

Eu is fifty-seven years old. He has a wife and twenty-four children, ranging in age from three to past thirty.

His eldest son was educated at Cambridge and married a British woman who has borne two children. The son's name is K. S. Eu and it is he who directs his father's vast interests. The father has worked long and hard and the doctors have forbidden him to engage in business any more.

Eu was born near Canton and migrated to Singapore, where he laid the foundation of his vast fortune.

His first money was made by dealing in drugs. He later opened a money exchange in connection with each of his drug-store branches. The money exchange operates similar to the United States Postoffice money order department.

In Singapore and the Malay Peninsula Eu bought up land and tin mines were found on his property. This stroke brought more gold pouring in.

Whereas his name is Eu Yan Sang in Hongkong and Canton it is Eu Tong Sen, in Singapore and the Malay States the translation differing in the two localities.

His servants number into the hundreds. In Hongkong he has three homes and nearly fifty servants. He has dozens of motorcars. He has a fleet of yachts.

He has travelled extensively. He dresses in European styles and his tastes are mostly European. He imports most of the furnishings for his home from the Continent.

Does Not Lack Speed

Automobile Made From Washtub Travels 70 Miles An Hour

Tom Donaldson, Hapeville, Georgia, drives 70 miles an hour in a washtub with a motor. It's really a toy automobile, made of a washtub and a four-cylinder motorcycle motor. Donaldson, 23-year-old mechanic, made it just for fun. The thing is 60 inches long and the little engine develops 34 horse-power. Parts of an automobile, water pipes, tin roofing, a motor boat's steering gear, pieces of an airplane and the tub were used to make the body.

A Good Fish Story

William H. Brunsell, who has just returned from Australia and the South Seas collecting fish for the aquarium, brought back: fish with noses; fish with orange tails that open and close; fish with two bodies and one head and fish that change their colors at will.

A man never knows what he can do until he tries—then he's very often sorry that he found out.

Buys Edison's Home

Henry Ford Moving Home From Ontario To Michigan

The childhood home of the world-famous inventor, Thomas Alva Edison, at the village of Vienna, near St. Thomas, Ont., has been purchased by Henry Ford and will be removed and re-erected in the Ford historical settlement at Dearborn, Mich. It was reported. Mr. Ford, a friend of the inventor, inspected the property. The house in which the late Mr. Edison spent his boyhood summers was built by his grandfather, Capt. Samuel Edison.

While in Vienna, Mr. Henry Ford and party had supper at the Vienna Hotel, part of which is said to be one hundred years old. The outside walls of this part are made of one-inch lumber, six inches wide, piled one upon the other.

Many stories are told by old residents of times in the old hotel in lumbering days and open bars, when liquor flowed freely and arguments were often settled by a fight, one of which, it is said, ended in the death of a man.

The hotel is now owned and operated by W. C. McDonald, who, while working in the ground around the house, has dug up a number of interesting old coins.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

MOCHA JUNKET WITH WHIPPED CREAM CHERRIES

2 tablespoons powder for chocolate junket.
2 tablespoons powder for coffee junket.
1 pint milk.
½ cup whipping cream.
1 egg white.
1 tablespoon powdered sugar.
Maraschino cherries.

Mix the two kinds of powder for junket and prepare junket according to directions on package. Chill in refrigerator. Just before serving, whip ½ cup of cream with 2 tablespoons cherry juice. Beat the white of one egg until stiff, adding 1 tablespoon of sugar gradually. Fold this into the cream with the cherries cut in small pieces. Serve on top of junket.

DROOP CAKES

(Makes 5 Dozens)

¾ cup shortening.
1½ cups brown sugar.
2 eggs.
1½ cups quick cooking oatmeal.
½ cup coconut.
6 tablespoons orange juice.
Grated rind of 1 orange.
1½ cups flour.
2 teaspoons baking powder.
½ teaspoon each of soda, cloves and salt.
1 teaspoon cinnamon.
½ cup sweet milk.

Cream shortening and sugar. Add well beaten eggs. Add oatmeal, coconut, orange juice and rind. Sift dry ingredients. Add with milk. Drop from teaspoon to well greased cookie sheet. Bake in a more than moderate oven (350 degrees to 400 degrees Fahrenheit). Nuts or candied orange peel may be substituted for coconut if desired.

Palestine's Early Farmers

Cut Grain With Sharpened Fillets Fitted To Stick

Palestine had its busy farmers 20,000 years ago, Drs. George Grant McCurdy of Yale University makes this declaration to the American Philosophical Society at Philadelphia. This carries the farming man twice as far back as did the Neolithic man. Dr. Grant exhibits skeletons of these long-headed, stooping Palestinian planters. The university's expedition brings back the most primitive sickles ever seen—first farmers cut their grain with sharpened fillets fitted to a crooked stick—Christian Science Monitor.

One Big Advantage

The one crop farmer, who buys all his food at the village grocery and turns his farm into a kind of factory for the production of one staple commodity, is specially vulnerable to any depression. The farmer who raises his own food is at least sure that he will never go hungry. And that, in times like those through which we have been passing, is an assurance worth having.

Hides From New Zealand

Little Helps For This Week

Let us not therefore judge one another any more; but judge this rather, that no man put a stumbling rather or any occasion to fall, in his brother's way."—Romans 14:12.

My mind was ruffled with small cares and my spirit perturbed, and did not keep.

Long-suffering patience well, and now how deep.

My trouble for this sin; in vain I weep.

For foolish words I never can unday. —H. S. Sutton.

A vexation arises, and our expressions of impatience hinder others from taking it patiently. We say an unkind thing and another is hindered in learning the holy lesson of charity that thinketh no evil. How sadly too we may hinder without word or act. For wrong feeling is more infectious than wrong doing, especially the various phases of ill-temper, gloominess, touchiness, discontent or irritability. do we not know how catching these are?—F. R. Haverlag.

Preserving Old Names

Historical Associations Lightly Regarded By Modern World

Without the veneration for the old names of streets, cities and counties, some of the members of the House of Commons sought to change the names of the electoral ridings during the debates of the governing committee. In Nova Scotia three counties were to be called "Evangeline," a name made famous by the poet Longfellow. At one time there was in Victoria, British Columbia, a street called "Bird Cage Walk," perhaps the most charming thoroughfare in the Capital. Along came the roughneck brigade and transformed it into Government Street. We may date our lineage back to Adam, but there are many who would show a descent rather than an ascent in culture. Preservation of old names is akin to some regard for the historical and the memorial.—Sherbrooke Record.

Medical Care For Indigent

Moose Jaw Doctors To Be Paid $200 Per Month

The Medical Association of Moose Jaw will take care of the unemployed and indigent sick and will be paid by the city at the rate of $200 per month.

This was agreed to at a meeting of city council and an agreement with the doctors will be drawn up later and signed by all of the doctors in the city.

The agreement will operate from month to month and will be subject to reconsideration at the end of each month. The money will be distributed equally among all members of the Medical Association.

Paris Needs Super Cats

To cope with the plague of rats which has been causing great damage in Paris, the municipal council has just voted to establish a farm for breeding and training cats of special strength and cleverness. City officials fear that ordinary cats would be killed by the rodents.

THAT DEPRESSED FEELING IS LARGELY LIVER

Wake up your Liver Bile

—Without Calomel

You are "feeling pink" simply because your liver is doing its duty. Bile is the most important of all the body's secretions. It is the only one that goes further than the mouth, mineral water, salt, laxative and/or other drugs or remedies, which only move the bowels—ignoring the real cause. Take Carter's Little Liver Pills. Purely vegetable. No harsh mineral (calomel). Safe. Ask for them by name. Before substitution. See all druggists.

A full congregation greeted Bishop Burgett, of Edmonton, when he conducted Anglican service at this point Sunday afternoon. From here he went to Wainwright to hold Confirmation service that evening.

Boxing Tournament at Strome, Monday, July 10

The main event at the Strome boxing tournament on Monday evening, July 10th, brings together Benjie Tait, of Edmonton, and Edwin Venstob, of Strome district. Tait has a reputation of being a fast, clean boxer and has met and defeated several of the best "milt" artists in the province and has had a lot of experience. Venstob is a corner and has won his latest bouts very handily. A strong, rugged boy, he is sure to be a real match for Tait.

Appearing in one of the semi-finals is George Scott, of Viking, and Chas. Renshaw, of Hardisty. This bout should be worth the price of admission.

GRANT FLEMING, M.D., ASSOCIATE SECRETARY

BILIOUSNESS

Biliousness is a term that today is not as commonly used as it was in the past generation. It is still heard, however, in descriptions of a condition of which the usual symptoms are headache, dizziness, indigestion, coated tongue, bad taste in mouth, and a depressed, tired feeling.

This condition is described as biliousness because the vomiting which occurs usually brings up bile, and so it is supposed that the liver, which manufactures the bile is out of order.

In such cases the liver is out of order, but the liver is not to blame. This organ carries on its work, day by day, without upsets, but if it is called upon to do more work than it is capable of doing, then trouble results.

If, for example, too much food is eaten, particularly if the overindulgence is in sweets and fats, there is very apt to be an upset of the digestive system, constipation occurs and the liver is overworked. When the liver is unable to function properly, the whole body suffers and the individual feels depressed or "blue."

This condition does not call for purgatives or liver pills. What is needed is simple food and reasonable attention to the manner of living. If the body is overloaded with foods, the machine becomes choked and cannot function properly. If waste materials are not got rid of, the machine cannot run smoothly.

The eating of a wide variety of plain foods is important. Overindulgence in any particular food must be avoided. Food must be thoroughly chewed. Meals should be taken at regular hours and not too hurriedly.

The body requires exercise, which is best obtained in games or in some outdoor activity, such as walking or gardening. A glass of water upon rising and between meals is desirable. Regular elimination can be secured through the establishment of a regular toilet habit, together with exercise and diet.

It is the neglect of these health needs which results in attacks of biliousness or sick headache. There is nothing else that will take the place of these requirements; certainly nothing in the form of medicine. Health is not found in a bottle of medicine. It comes through the way of living and in no other way.

Questions concerning Health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College Street, Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.

Consolidating Tax Arrears.

For the purpose of encouraging property owners to liquidate any arrears of taxes, and also to give better opportunity to those whose lands may have passed under the tax recovery act, to regain title or at least protect their property from sale, the provisions of the new tax consolidation act, passed at last session of the legislature, have now been brought into effect, and may be taken advantage of. The act provides for arrears of taxes of more than a year's standing, as at the beginning of 1933, to be consolidated, and payments made in six annual instalments, each to be paid not later than December 15 in each year. The first instalment is to be ten per cent. of the consolidated arrears, the second instalment ten per cent, the third 15 per cent, the fourth 20 per cent, the fifth 20 per cent, and the sixth 25 per cent. Those wishing to avail themselves of the advantages of the act must apply in writing to the municipality before October 19. Owners of land whose taxes were consolidated under the acts of 1931 and 1932, may come under the new agreement by making application up to October 15. The instalments collected under the new system will be pro-rated among the various taxing authorities involved. The new act provides also for certain discounts on the payments of the instalments of arrears, as follows:—For arrears of six years and more 26 per cent, arrears of five years, 22 per cent, of four years 18 per cent, of three years 14 per cent, and of two years nine per cent. These discounts will be computed, not on total amount of the consolidation, but separately on each class of tax involved. That is, if the portion of consolidated amount which is due on supplementary revenue is in arrears for six years, then the 26 per cent, discount applies to that arrears. For only four years, then it will receive only 18 per cent, discount and so forth. The act also assists those whose property is at present under the tax recovery act, by permitting them also to make an agreement, to pay up arrears under the new act, and on completion of all the requirements of the agreement, regain title to their lands. This applies to owners of two acres or more. A special additional discount of four per cent, is allowed those who can pay the entire consolidated sum in one payment, this discount being computed on the net amount of arrears due, after the other discounts have been deducted.
